The Honor Society of Nursing, Sigma Theta Tau International (STTI) was founded in 1922 at the Indiana University Training School for Nurses and became incorporated in 1985 as Sigma Theta Tau International Inc. The founders chose the name from the Greek words Storgé, Tharsos and Timé meaning "love" "courage" and "honor". STTI is a national organization committed to nursing excellence through service, research, leadership, scholarship, knowledge, and professional development. From its inception, STTI has recognized the value of research, scholarship and excellence in nursing practice and is committed to nursing excellence and professional development. STTI's motto: Improving World Health through Knowledge, still holds true today. The Central Ohio Consortium is comprised of 5 area chapters which all commit to upholding STTI's mission, vision and motto.

Rho Omicron is pleased to welcome Dr. Jill Kilanowski presenting her research on Healthy-eating decision-making in adolescent children of Latino migrant farm workers: Mixed methods pilot study. Dr. Jill Kilanowski, PhD, RN, APRN, CPNP, FAAN, is the Associate Dean for Graduate Nursing Programs at Mount Carmel College of Nursing. Dr. Kilanowski has been a champion for the children of migrant and seasonal agricultural workers conducting seminal research on their health, rates of obesity, food frequencies, physical activity, food security, acculturation, and safety in the migrant work camp. She has examined and has conducted intervention studies in migrant camps and in Migrant Education Programs. She has first authored over twenty peer-reviewed articles and has contributed book chapters to three publications. She has presented her research on regional, national, and international forums. She is currently funded by the Central States Center for Agricultural Safety and Health at the University of Nebraska to create a comic book to teach children and parents about safety in the agricultural work camp and works with colleagues from the Columbus College of Art and Design. As acknowledgment for her work, Dr. Kilanowski was appointed by Secretary Sebelius to serve as a member and now appointed by Secretary Burwell Chair of the National Advisory Council of Migrant Health for the Health Resources and Service Administration. Her presentation will discuss her mixed methods research on healthy-eating decision-making of adolescent children of migrant farm workers.
