FACULTY MARSHAL

Each year, a faculty member is chosen from the Columbus campus and Lancaster campus to execute the duties of Faculty Marshal. This year, the honor has been bestowed upon Miriam Bowers Abbott and Cheryl Eads.

FOUNDERS

Founded in 1903 by the Congregation of the Sisters of the Holy Cross, Mount Carmel School of Nursing granted thousands of nursing diplomas before becoming Mount Carmel College of Nursing in 1990 with the introduction of a fully accredited Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) program. Mount Carmel College of Nursing is now among the largest undergraduate nursing programs in the state of Ohio. In 2003, one hundred years after opening its doors, the institution took another bold step forward, introducing a Master of Science (MS) degree. In Fall 2015, the College added an online Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) degree.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Jerry Mansfield, PhD, RN, NEA-BC

Chief Nursing Officer – Ohio Region, Mount Carmel Health System
Associate Dean, Leadership and Clinical Practice, Mount Carmel College of Nursing

Jerry Mansfield, Ph.D., R.N., NEA-BC, is the chief nursing officer for Mount Carmel Health System and associate dean for Leadership and Clinical Practice at the Mount Carmel College of Nursing.

Jerry has worked in healthcare for more than 35 years—from staff nurse roles in orthopedics and critical care to nurse executive roles in ambulatory services and at hospitals in both central Ohio and South Carolina.

He comes to Mount Carmel from Medical University of South Carolina (MUSC), where he was executive chief nursing officer and chief patient experience officer. He was also an affiliate associate professor at MUSC College of Nursing and a clinical associate professor at the College of Medicine.

Prior to MUSC, Jerry worked as chief nursing officer at Ohio State Hospital East, previously known as University Hospital East, University Hospital and Ross Heart Hospital, for more than 15 years, as well as served as the first CNO of Ambulatory Services. He also worked in various nursing leadership roles at Select Specialty Hospital of Columbus, OrthoExcel, Grant Wound Care Center and OhioHealth Grant Medical Center.

Jerry graduated with a diploma in nursing from Saint Vincent Hospital School of Nursing in Toledo. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in nursing from Xavier University. He went on to receive a Master of Science degree in nursing administration, along with a doctorate in public health from The Ohio State University. Jerry is a Robert Wood Johnson Executive Nurse Fellow and board-certified Nurse Executive Advanced from the American Nurses Credentialing Center.

Jerry serves as a board member of the Friends of the National Institute of Nursing Research (2018 to present) and serves as co-chair of the international Nurse Executive Council of the Beryl Institute – dedicated to improving the human experience in health care.

Jerry and his wife Jane have two adult sons—Erik in Scottsdale, AZ and Evan in Columbus, OH. We're also "thrilled" to care for our "hot mess" Brady – a West Highland Terrier!

ACADEMIC REGALIA

The origins of academic dress date back to the 12th and 13th centuries, when universities were taking form. The ordinary dress of the scholar, whether student or teacher, was the dress of a cleric. With few exceptions, the medieval scholar had taken at least minor orders, made certain vows, and perhaps been tonsured (having a bald spot, either shaved or natural). Long gowns were worn and may have been necessary for warmth in unheated buildings.

The assignment of colors to signify certain faculties was to be a much later development, which was standardized in the United States in the late 19th century. White, taken from the white fur trimming of the Oxford and Cambridge BA hoods, was assigned to arts and letters.

Red, one of the traditional colors of the church, went to theology.

Green, the color of medieval herbs, was adopted for medicine, and olive, because it was so close to green, was given to pharmacy. Golden yellow, standing for the wealth that scientific research has produced, was assigned to the sciences.

Gowns recommended for use in the colleges and universities of this country have the following characteristics: The gown for the bachelor's degree has pointed sleeves. It is designed to be worn closed. The gown for the master's degree has an oblong sleeve, open at the wrist, like the others. The sleeve base hangs down in the traditional manner.

The rear part of its oblong shape is square cut, and the front part has an arc cutaway. The gown is so designed and supplied with fasteners that it may be worn open or closed. The gown for the doctor's degree has bell-shaped sleeves. It is so designed and supplied with fasteners that it may be worn open or closed. The black mortar board is worn for all degrees, but only the doctor's cap may be made of velvet.

It is the hood that is the most important and distinctive feature of the Intercollegiate Code. The doctor's hood, of black cloth, is four feet in length and made with a wide panel. The master's and bachelor's hoods are three-and-one half feet long and three feet wide. The binding or trim of all hoods is of velvet and two, three, and five inches wide for the bachelor's, master's, and doctor's degrees, respectively. The color of this velvet trim indicates the academic disciplines to which the degree pertains. The lining of the hood reflects the official colors of the college/university.

Faculty and students may also wear the Kente cloth as part of the academic regalia. The origin of the Kente cloth dates back to 12th century Africa. Kente is a ceremonial cloth that was originally worn by kings, queens and heads of state. Kente means “basket” and is so named because of the cloth’s resemblance to the woven design of a basket. Kente cloths are made on a loom by hand and come in various colors, sizes and designs.

Each design has a deep symbolic meaning and the Kente is worn only on the most auspicious occasions. For those who wear it, the Kente is much more than a cloth. It is a visual representation of the history of a people, and great pride and respect for education.
